

NOMADS & WANDERERS

The Holocene Epoch in the history of our planet has witnessed the transition of human culture which in the last 10.000 years saw a development from society of hunters and gatherers to modern day communities. The hunter & gatherers were nomads who moved from one place to another as a method of survival.

Throughout the written history there have been various nomadic cultures, the most well-known one being the Roma communities across the globe. Today there are still millions of people living nomadic lives, and apart from the nomads, there are also many others who wander around without a permanent address.

In this week's Today Talks, we will be discussing the social, political, environmental conditions that enable the people to adopt nomadic life styles without settling in one place. Be it the culturally nomadic people, the wanderers, members of diaspora, exiles, refugees...
